Today at BEA, Melissa Foster, New York Times and USA Today bestselling indie author announced the winners of the 2015 IndieReader Discovery Awards. Congrats to all of our winners!

Today at Book Expo America (BEA), the premiere book trade show which took place in New York City, the 2015 IRDA winners were announced. Sharing the duties with Amy Edelman, founder of IndieReader was Melissa Foster, a award-winning, New York Times and USA Today bestselling indie author of 32 books (she has several more awaiting publication) which have together sold over 1 million copies. Melissa is also the founder of the World Literary Cafe and Fostering Success.

The judges on the IRDA panel included top people in all areas of the publishing industry, in concert with IndieReader's trusty reviewers. Judging was based on the quality of writing and the originality of the story. There was a first, second and third place winner in each of the fiction and non-fiction categories, in addition to winners in various sub-categories, indicating that each book has received at least a 4-5 star review (out of 5 stars).

Without further ado, IndieReaders, meet this year's winners!
